THE FRILLBACK

ORIGIN: Obscure probably Asia Minor.
SIZE: Large, a trifle smaller than the Trumpeter, full in body.
CARRIAGE: Rather low set crouchy or squatty.

SHAPE: Boaty, rather long than otherwise. Neck should be of medium length, broad at the shoulders. Chest, wide and prominent. Breast, rounded and projecting beyond the wing butts. Flights should be tight fitting, carried above a closely folded tail. Legs, stout, and of medium length, with profusely frilled muffs.

CREST: The Frillback may be either crested or plain headed. The crested variety is preferred. The crest should be what is known as the shell crest; this should extend from eye to eye, showing a cup like cavity not resting upon, or touching the head, as in the case of Nun pigeon.

COLOR: The Frillback is seen in white and various color grizzles, but the white (self colored) is the most popular; the other colors are rarely seen.
HEAD: Neat, dove shaped, of medium length, with a small, neat eye cere; the orange should be orange in all colors.

BEAK: Slender, rather long than otherwise, straight set and not spindly.

FRILLING: The ideal Frillback should be frilled all over as much as possible. This is best described as a long, loose curl, the more even and length the better.
